MR. COE

In recognition of twenty years of hard work raising Howland from an unknown school to a school of musical distinction, we hereby dedicate "The Scroll" to Mr. Roger W. Coe. His record at the school cannot be easily brushed aside. He has led the only Trumbull County band that has gone to a national band contest. These contests were at Cleveland in 1936 and at Elkhart, Indiana, in 1938. He has also won several state and county contests.

When you see the "Professor," as Mr. Coe is known, walking through the halls of the school you cannot help but notice the spring in his step, the color in his cheek, and the smile on his face. They can be attributed to his rugged outdoor life. In pre-war days, the "Professor" would always spend at least two weeks fishing on the lakes of Canada. His pet theory is that everyone should have a hobby and he applies this in his own hobby of mink raising at which he has achieved local fame. His appeal to students lies in his wise understanding of the foibles and fancies of modern youth. His famous "loud" ties have become a sacred Howland tradition copied by all.

"Professor" Coe, that's our boy!

OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

DONALD DeARMENT

CARL ROOSE

RAYMOND PALM

RICHARD VOORHEES

It is with extreme pride that the Senior Class of '45 dedicates this page to those boys from their class now fighting on foreign shores. They are now pitching grenades as we pitch baseballs, firing anti-aircraft guns as we fire paperwads and studying warfare as we study English. They will fight as we study but when they come back we must make sure their sacrifice was not in vain.

CLASS MOTTO
Education Today: Application Tomorrow

The importance of education is realized by the Class of 1945. Though many of their classmates are serving in the armed forces, the need for education is self-evident. When these Seniors graduate, they will find the world hard and life a little less easy than school life. Work will be difficult to obtain, open only to those with the ability to learn and to apply their knowledge. Each time an English theme is handed in, a chemistry equation is balanced or a typing letter mailed, human advancement moves a few steps farther, and the four words above symbolize that progress.

The world of tomorrow will be made of people just like the Class of 1945 — people who will know what and how to do a thing. This can only be accomplished by study: study today for the world of tomorrow.

CLASS HISTORY

In the year 1942, a class of proud eighth graders were welcomed into the more important section of Howland School, the Senior High, with cheers like "Freshies" or "Greenies."

The Freshmen of "42" were very successful as a class. They took part in many activities and their class party was said to have been the best ever given.

1943—The class of '45, now Sophomores, and wishing they were Juniors, could see the finer things of life. The longing for the prom, the Junior play, the better chance of playing basketball, all these were wishful thinking, too far away to come true yet.

This was the year in which the girls took an interest in the two-step, and the year the boys decided they hated the two-steps, but the class trudged on happily together.

1944—Juniors at last! The class was successful in presenting the play "Galahad Jones." They took part in Baccalaureate, holding the hands of the Seniors, not only to share their emotions, but to keep their own knees from buckling.

They went to the prom, the first real party for most of them. Afterward some of them went to Idora Park where the crazy girls wore formals on the "Wild Cat," and everyone ate hot dogs. Then came the ordering of class rings, which was a last promising step towards twelfth grade.

The time finally came to bid "farewell" to the Seniors. It was not an easy job. Was it possible that the Juniors could fill their places in the band, choir, "Scoop" staff, the athletic teams, the classrooms, the halls, the corner store, and the Sharon bus? Yes, it was rather a hard step to take, not knowing their ways too well.

The time was soon September 6, 1944, at nine o'clock. The first bell rang and the Class of '45 was now christened Senior. Seniors, and the last year of school lay ahead.

To some students this meant happiness, a quiet happiness with the thought of getting out of school. To many it meant just nine short months till they would be out on their own, working alone for the first time.

They have had their Senior play, their prom and dances, but the biggest thing of all, and perhaps the saddest of four years of high school comes May 23, 1945, Graduation Day. Sometimes the thought of it brings butterflies to stomachs, lumps to throats, or tears to eyes. Oh, to be a Freshman again!

Then they did not know what self-reliance meant, they did not realize what war meant, nor did they realize what it meant to be a Senior!

HAVE WE FINISHED?

This is 1945, the year of the end of our present struggle. Germany has been defeated—Japan's downfall has begun. Our boys are coming home soon, tired, much older and wiser. Are we wiser? Is the work for us at home finished? We have amazed the world by our huge productive capacity. We have startled our enemies by our courage and perseverance, and by our mutual cooperation. But have we finished? Can we now lean back in our easy chairs and davenport; turn on the radio, pick up the evening paper, and wait contentedly for a warm supper without thought again of this war? Have we finished?

When we entered this war we raised our voices to proclaim the Four Freedoms to the world. Freedom of Speech . . . let a man speak his thoughts aloud to his neighbors. Freedom of Worship . . . let a man go to his Church and worship his God as he likes. Freedom from Fear . . . let him build his home and live his life away from the threat of war and murder and intimidation. Freedom from Want . . . let him do his work, confident that he can provide food, clothing, and shelter for his family. Will the Atlantic Charter be just a scrap of paper, or will we make it a potent symbol in the postwar world? What have the ominous words "We regret to inform you . . . killed in action" meant to us? Do they mark the end or the beginning? Do they mark the result or the reason?

We have defeated the enemy on the battlefield; we have destroyed his armies; his political society, and many of his cities. We have not won this war! Our purposes, the reasons for which we have fought, have not been accomplished. Let us awake from this false sleep and realize we are not through. Yes, the Third Reich is no more. The Gestapo, the General Staff, all are gone. But the deep roots of these evils exist still. Economic uncertainty, fear of neighboring military powers, the inferiority feeling of a defeated nation, and the lack of trust in government of any kind, can all be found imbedded in the heart of the German citizen. Remember, it is easy to defeat an enemy . . . but it is so much more difficult to win a war.

The sacrifices entailed are much greater than to give work, or time, or money, or even lives. It is harder to learn to love and respect an enemy; it is harder to build his churches, to give him bread while we do without meat, to give him a job while we are idle, than to do any of the things we have done so far. These are the sacrifices we have yet to make. May God help us to see and do these things, which we must do if all the peoples of this planet earth shall live together in peace; working, not killing; building, not destroying; and helping, not fighting.

May our prayer be to let us never forget the sacrifices of the past. But more important, never to lose sight of the reason for which they were given.

FOR FUTURE REFERENCE

It is evening. The lights are softly diffused through the walled bungalow (1970 model). A tall, slender man, his hair distinguishingly grayed at the temples, steps from a conservative business autogiro and strides up the walk. A blonde matron meets him at the door as the electric-eye throws it open wide.

"Did you have a hard day at the office, dear? The vitamin capsules are on the table and dinner will be ready as soon as I take up the beef-steak pills. Oh, dear, I'm afraid the twins have the measles and Theodore, Junior twisted his ankle playing football. Ronald—I know it was a mistake to name him that—was late again for lunch today and you'll have to speak to him sharply and—"

"Now, now, dear, calm yourself. I'll take care of everything in the same efficient manner I used to manage the senior class at Howland back in '45. This commuting from Tokyo every evening is getting tiresome. I almost missed the last local commuter's clipper to Cleveland. Such a nuisance those Japs cooked up in '41. I'm getting tired of being governor-general in charge of the reconstruction in Tokyo. I'm either going to resign or we'll need to move closer—Seattle, for instance."

"But Howland is such a quiet place; so nice for the children."

"Oh, I don't know, dear. Since George Merrick got himself elected to Congress and we have those seven Merrick Dams on Mosquito Creek, business has been moving in and some of these 'new' people have only been here fifteen years and they're trying to run the place."

"Yes, I know, and the children insist on hanging around McBride's 'You Junk 'Em and We Fix 'Em Shop' and I'm so afraid they'll get hurt around those wheels and cogs. But I chuckle to myself every time I see that old Packard sitting there, the one we used to drive around in when we were seniors. Imagine!!! It would only do seventy-five. How do you suppose we ever stood to dawdle along? The Evening Scoop has come, dear. That little red-headed Evans boy brought it. He said he was late because his father made him polish his trombone. Remember, Jack never would do anything he could talk someone else into doing. But at least, Jackie has done all right with his trombone. He has a twenty week engagement at the Post Theatre."

"Well, I think I'll look at the paper while you dish up the concentrated carrots . . . well, well, look here, dear. The class of '45 is certainly right here in print. Imagine Jack Soules has just been made Chief of Staff by President Kelts—the first Republican president since 1932—and a woman at that!!!!!"

"But I hear it was mostly due to the brilliancy of Dorothy Cashman's scintillating campaign speeches—a silver-tongued orator, our Dorothy. Read me the Howland news while I pour the coffee."

"I see Georgann still writes the Howland news despite her syndicated column that has made her so famous. Goodness—just listen to this."

"Hal Downs has been awarded the contract for heating the school."

"Ralph Keefner's cartoons are outselling Milt Caniff's Terry and the Pirates."

"Bill Parise has just patented a shotgun that shoots, skins and cooks the rabbits."

Stanley Partridge is the new minister at the Howland Community Christian Church.

"Phillip Orr has just been elected sheriff with Bob Wright and Charles Yanick as his deputies."

"Helen Alexander has been appointed matron of the Howland Orphanage."

"Jenny Barna and Margaret Sanders just had a double wedding."

"Jean Sayers writes 'Advice to the Lovelorn' in the Howland Scoop."

"Kitty and the children have just returned from a visit with the Rear Admiral. She was accompanied by Edythe who visited the Admiral before he sailed for Timbuctoo."

"President Kelts just appointed Marjorie Wilson, Secretary of the Treasury; Ronald Rager, Secretary of Labor; Melvin Geist, Secretary of Commerce; Bud Cunningham, Postmaster General; Paul Brady, Attorney General; Walter Stein, Secretary of Agriculture; and Don Everett, Secretary of the Interior."

"Yes, and Beverly Hobbins, Zeta Steinbeck, and Joanne Mason of the Hobsteinson Studios have been awarded the contract for the new murals in the capital (and President Kelts insists on a Republican motif.)"

"Nancy Hostetler and Marie Latham are known as the 'Nightingale Duo' and are appearing in a special song program at the Howland Church every night."

"Dinner is served, dear."

"Coming, honey. Say, did you read in the Scoop that Walter Hess III has been appointed head basketball coach at Howland High? Gee, and to complete that Hess family, little Shirley is playing first violin in the Howland Orchestra and also substituting for the chemistry teacher on his day off."

"Yes, dear, I did read that. I was so thrilled today though, when I saw Margaret Shore and Stella Barnum up town. Did you know that they own their own "Shor-Bar" Model Agency and that they were the ones who discovered Betty Sable?"

"Son, eat your spinach pills. You will grow up to be like 'Andy, the Handy' Simun if you do. Gee, but he's made a name for himself with all those physical culture courses."

"Yes, he has, but did you know that our own Joy McCready and Avis Lingo are co-manufacturers of the newest in auto-planes?"

"Well, now that dinner's over and the dishes already in the automatic washer, let's go into the television room and watch the programs."

"Say, isn't it just about time for Margaret Bitner to come on in the 'Howland Twp. Store'? She's pretty good. I remember her and her quips when we were Seniors."

After answering the door buzzer, Ted found, to his amazement, Mr. and Mrs. Best and Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who had just returned from a jaunt to the South Seas. Of course, they were both in the Navy—commanders of the Naval Fleet within Tokyo Bay. This made quite an interesting evening. They talked far into the night about the pleasant years they had had at dear old Howland.

Mr. Best was heard to remark, "The other day I was visiting the office of the American consulate and who should I see behind the desk marked "Ambassador" but Dorothea Husemann, the first woman ambassador to Japan. Her secretary was Patty Huckelbury. It certainly was good to see someone from Howland that you knew. Patty has established the typing records of all Japan."

Mr. Williams was telling about his trip to London. He was knighted by the King and during his visit he happened to visit the Queen's beauty shoppe. He stated, "I was very much interested in beauty (don't be angry, lovey), so I went in. The chief beauty operator was, much to my surprise, Jeanette Voorhees."

"Yes, times have certainly changed. Why, just the other day," said Georgia, "I flitted up to New York to hear a broadcast of one of my favorite programs and to my surprise I found Dorothy Bee, Norma Nelson, LaVerne Palm and Dolores Dirmeyer all valued members of the famous Ingalls-all-woman orchestra. We had a long chat about the good old times. Norma happened to mention that Donna Winch had just opened her one millionth photography shop. Dorothy Ingalls was so stately as the conductor."

"Well, that's nothing," said Mr. Kostyshak. "During my trip to the central part of China the other day, I noticed that a new typewriting company had been set up. The manager was our Betty Lou Smith. Of course, with all her success as publisher of the Howland Scoop, she went to China with her business manager, Nelma Panttila, to form the world famous "Chinese Times."

After all the guests had left, Mr. and Mrs. Kostyshak went to their room. "It surely has been a pleasant evening, hasn't it, Ted?" said Georgia.

"Yes, it has. You know, I stop to think often about the old times and then try to figure out what each one is doing. The last week of April I stopped in to see a friend at the Washington Hospital where I found Helen Turner and Betty Tononi working as head nurses. Roberta Johnson, as I found out later, was the dietician."

"Yes, you try to account for all the members and it's a tremendous task. But just the other day I did stop in to see one of my favorite plays. Naturally, I went back stage to see who had the leading roles. And guess whom I saw? Dorothy Manley and Delores Franek. Of course, both of them have received the Academy Award when they worked in pictures."

"Is that so? When I was in New York recently I went to see the author of A Bush Blooms In Howland, Glendora Collins. I was surprised to see her. She said that just the day before she had had lunch with Mabel Demzak, Betty Phillips and Jean Fellows. They are now managers of the Literary Society for the Benefit of Howlandites."

"Don't you think we've accounted for everyone? Just a minute. I did remember seeing Eloise Dawson. She's just returned from India where she's been with her husband. They are social workers."

Ted pulled down the sheet and the bedlight flashed on. As they climbed in, both felt sure that Howland would never be forgotten.

JUNIOR PLAY

On November 19, 1944, the Class of 1946 presented their play, "Wanted a Hero," by Robert St. Clair. The scene took place in the West at Dudley's Dude Ranch. The play was full of laughs and humor as Paul Jones (alias Bertram Weeks) attempted to prove that he was a man. Butterfly-seeking Bertram found himself in several tough spots, especially when he landed on a cactus. The situation itself was quite complicated and the hero wasn't discovered until the end.

Congratulations should go to the cast, Miss Kelly, and Miss Leisure for the splendid performances, direction and make-up.

THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society is composed of juniors and seniors throughout Trumbull County who are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and service. Five per cent of the junior class and fifteen per cent of the senior class are recommended by the high school faculty. This group forms an intricate part of school life, and each member is proud to become a link in its chain. Selection is difficult, but those who are chosen must be worthy of the honor. This year Howland is not only proud to have thirteen members to represent it, but also Jack Soules as its county president.

VARSIY BASKETBALL

The Howland Tigers played better than .640 ball by taking eleven games out of a seventeen game schedule. Among these teams was Woodrow Wilson, a class "A" school from Youngstown, which it toppled, 38 to 36. One happy event of the season was that the Tigers broke even with all the teams that they played twice in the season with the exception of Leavittsburg. The high point of the schedule was the 39-36 trimming by the Tigers of the Champion Hoopsters. This was the only defeat pinned on Champion in regular court-play.

In the first game of the T. I. A. tournament, Howland met and defeated Cortland by the score of 51 to 39. Although the score doesn't prove it, the winner was never in doubt, for Howland was always in the lead!

After leading the Vienna quintet through most of the first half, the Tigers couldn't stop a second half rally and were knocked from the tournament by a score of 41-31. The game was a hard fought affair with both teams giving all they had.

In a consolation game the Tigers earned an easy 53 to 26 victory over a hapless Gustavus five. This victory enabled them to compete in the Sectional Tournament at McDonald.

A feature of the county tournament was the naming of Ray Larson as one of the fifteen outstanding players of the tournament.

The first game at McDonald turned out to be the last as the Tigers were dumped by Leetonia to the tune of 49 to 46. The game was hard fought with Howland at one time having a ten-point lead. The Leetonia rally brought them ahead in the last five minutes to eke out the victory.

First Row: Ray Larson, Louis Lushina, Willis Scott (Manager), Walter Hess, Bud Cunningham.
 Second Row: Bill Root, Edward Chagnot, Red Shafer, Bud Brown, Max Wakefield, Walter Stein.

RESERVE BASKETBALL

The Howland Reserve team came through the court-war with a fine record of victories and only four defeats. The defeats came from Champion, twice, Johnston, and Youngstown East, the latter being a class "A" quintet. The first Champion game was the best reserve game of the season. The Tigers were ahead through most of the game, but Champion pulled up even in the last quarter and then won the game in an overtime period. The score was 31 to 27. Four Howland players were expelled from the game via the personal foul route.

In tournament competition the Tiger reserves easily handled the four teams they played and took the championship. In the championship game, they defeated the Johnston hoopsters to the tune of 34 to 23.

The highlight of the tournament was the naming of Brown, Wakefield, and Chagnot as three of the fifteen outstanding players of the tournament.

CHEERLEADERS

Martha Kostyshak, Donna Oaks, Don Everett,
Peggy Shore, Betty Hake.

CHEER LEADERS

Exemplifying Howland's energetic school life are the five active cheer leaders. They have participated fully in all of Howland's court games, both at home and abroad, and have taken an active part in assemblies and pep rallies at the school.

First Row: Walter Stein, Bill Latham, Hal Downs, Ronald Rager, Louis Lushina.
 Second Row: Bud Brown, Ronald Shafer, Willis Scott, Andrew Simun, Max Wakefield.

BASEBALL

Howland had a highly successful season on the diamond, winning all but two games. The Tigers were eliminated from the County Championship in a tight game with Leavittsburg which the invaders took 2-1. One feature of the season was the naming of Rager and Holland as a battery on the All-County team.

BAND

The band is still striving for "good fellowship" and "co-operation," and in learning that, one is surely better fitted for the things to come. There have been better and larger bands, but we feel that they are contributing to the unfinished symphony of life, and that is best demonstrated by the goodly number of our alumnae, who are playing in Army, Navy, military and swing bands, in all parts of the world, with one member playing in a war prisoner's camp orchestra in Germany. We feel sure that their ability as musicians has been a fine contribution to their morale, both at home and abroad. So, hats off to the boys in the service of their country! Though the contests have been discontinued for the duration, the band members are content to find in their own school life something worth while that can never be found elsewhere—instrumental music.

ORCHESTRA

The Howland School Orchestra has added several new members to its personnel this year, assuring the school of an orchestra for sometime to come. Although the music produced by this group isn't as boisterous as the band's, it has its place in school life and entertainments that cannot be filled by any other group. Our sincere hope is that Howland School will always boast of and support an orchestra. Howland can well be proud of its fine musical organizations, for its reputation throughout the state and county has proven this again and again. The "Professor" has been the leader for many years and under his supervision the instrumental music department has become a most valued tradition.

A CAPELLA CHOIR

How heartening it is to hear the A Capella Choir offer D. Rhys Ford's "Speak Low to Me, My Savior," or Dvorak's "Goin' Home." The choir has become one of the finest organizations in the curricula of Howland. The students that make up the choir work hard and strive in every way to make their music of the finest quality. Under the direction of Mr. Jenkins, music supervisor for the last two years, the choir has grown and developed into a fine organization—of which Howland is most assuredly proud. Howland deserves to be proud of its A Capella Choir. This choir has brought fame to Howland in every broadcast, concert and sacred program in which it has participated. Howland will never be able to do without its music organizations, the A Cappella included.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The oldest vocal music organization in the school, the Girls' Glee Club provides the best in music for everyone. It consists of members of the four upper classes. During the years of its existence, the club has presented many crowning achievements, among them was their beautiful rendition of "The Rosary." When one stops in the auditorium to listen to them sing, he is never disappointed for it is a delightful program he hears.

First Row: Shirley Buechling, Bill Root, Ward Crawford, Donald Logan, Frank Stein, Dud McCall, Gerald Pawelchak, Bud Barnett, Jim Brewster.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

Did you ever listen to a male chorus sing selections from "The Pirates of Penzance?" No? Then you haven't enjoyed the Howland Boys' Glee Club in concert or at rehearsal. This club has never been large in comparison to the Girls' Glee Club or the A Capella Choir, but they need not have a large group to bring the fine music they present. The manpower shortage has struck at this organization, too, but Howland's boys always come through to present some spine-tingling arrangement of a fine song.

Georgia Brewster, Georgann Seekins, Martha Hetz, Margaret Durlless, Betty Lou Smith, Adella Pawlosky, Dolores Franek, Phyllis Hutchinson, Edythe Berry.

GIRLS' TRIPLE TRIO

Through the halls of Howland School echo the beautiful strains of "One Alone" or "Beside Still Waters" as sung by the Girls' Triple Trio. Though one of the youngest of the vocal music organizations, it has contributed its part in bringing fame to the musical department of Howland. Composed of nine girls, who also represent the Girls' Glee Club and the A Capella Choir, the triple trio has sung over WRRN and WFMJ and has taken part in the annual concert.

SEXTETTE

The years 1944-45 have seen the birth of a new musical organization. The Girls' Sextette was formed and thus far in the school years they have served notice that they will become a big part of the vocal music department. This one year of existence has seen fine music produced and we shall watch with eager eye at the progress they make in this field.

BOYS' QUARTET

If you like some soul stirring song of the present, or a barber shop arrangement of some older hit, just open your ears to the music of the Boys' Quartet. This year, more so than in other years, we have heard some of the finest Negro spirituals that can be found. This quartet is one of the younger musical organizations, but like the rest of them, has contributed largely to the success of our vocal music department.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the Class of 1945 having completed four years of activity at Howland High School, with a zeal, that at times approached diligence; and being as sound of mind and body as is usual with high school seniors, do will and bequeath the following named articles of value and sentiment to the Class of 1946 and their successors, ad infinitum; and do hereunto affix the Great Seal of the Class of 1945.

We trust to your shoulders Juniors, that awesome burden of Senior English. Let Keats, Shelley and Byron fall as they will, struggle through till the day when you can toss the book gently at the Class of '47.

Our going will witness many vacant chairs in band and orchestra—move up, Juniors—fill our places and then send them with some solid jive, interspersed with Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, of course.

A special gift to the keyboard bumpers—Miss Porter's wonderful martial music to raise the spirits and the WPM of the typists.

Those curious noises, emanating from the time-honored Senior girl's homeroom, are lost to us forever. But hope lies with the Junior girls—preserve the custom.

That sanctuary of modern minds, that room of gentle quiet for sleepy students—that home of innumerable "Bull" sessions, these we must give up. To you and yours, Class of '46, goes the library's so-called "back room." May you realize the sacrifice with which we relinquish this treasure. Please preserve it carefully, along with the Senate's "DO NOT DISTURB" sign.

Ours has always been the arm of Progress. As we walk out the door of Government for the last time our hearts return to the debates, the discussions, and the arguments which marked our earnest search for truth. They are no longer ours, but yours, Juniors. And the lab, that labyrinth of sights, sounds and smells, with its beakers, and tubes, and hose, and burners; these, too, must we leave regretfully.

And the last but certainly not the least of our possessions which we must leave to you, Seniors of 1946—Mr. Hanson's office. May you find peace, rest, help and good company in the little room just off the second floor. As for Mr. Hanson himself, preserve him carefully. He will be a real help at the right moment.

"So long, Dear Juniors," the Seniors sigh,
"It's just Farewell, and not Good-bye.
Fill in our places and you'll see why
We say 'Farewell,' and not 'Good-bye.' "

"Good luck, success, and happiness, too,
Friends were we, yes, we and you.
Take up our torch so we may say,
Some day to you, "Happy Graduation Day!"
